St. James's Palace. The beautiful gateway of the old Palace of St. James stands in Pall Mall at the bottom end of St. James's Street. The Palace was formerly a lepers' hospital, being converted into a Royal residence by Henry VIII, for Anne Boleyn. It has always been intimately associated with English history, and was the residence of the Sovereign from the reign of William III to that of George IV. Charles I slept here the night before his execution.
